New Administrative Structure Aims to Strengthen, Enhance School Goals and Opportunities

A new school year always brings about changes and new opportunities, and this 2015-2016 school year is no different at Elyria Catholic.

A new administrative structure has been implemented to support the growing academic and advancement needs of the school. With Mrs. Amy Butler ’80 at the helm of advancement as president/principal, Mr. Michael Wisnor has stepped into the role as associate principal. As such, Wisnor will be managing the day-to-day operations of the school. In addition to ensuring the continuance of a strong, Christ-centered school, Wisnor also aims to boost collegiality, enhance the curriculum, strengthen communication, and commit to the school’s continuous improvement.

Working alongside Wisnor in the front office is experienced educator and EC alum, Mr. Tom Taylor, ’79. Taylor brings with him 30 years of educational experience as EC’s new assistant principal. Prior to this he worked as the Assistant Principal at Brunswick High School for 19 years. Taylor also worked for Elyria City Schools as a special education teacher for 11 years. In addition, he coached baseball for Elyria Catholic from 1986 to 1995. Taylor and his wife Tracy have three children who graduated from EC: Corey ’07, Ryan ’09, and Emily ’11. Likewise, Taylor is the only person to have coached at all three of Elyria’s past and present high schools: Elyria High, Elyria West, and Elyria Catholic. Taylor will be focusing on student discipline, work in tandem with the guidance department, oversee student co-curricular activities, and help coordinate the scheduling process. Veteran math teacher Mrs. Patti Lutke has stepped in as the dean of academics, and will also be teaching two math courses during the day as well. As dean, she will assist the administrative team and guidance with course selection, professional development, and curriculum development.

Andy Krakowiak Reflects on Pope’s Visit

I was blessed through my personal invitation as a lifelong Catholic educator to witness a special moment in U.S. history as I attended Pope Francis’ address to the joint session of Congress in Washington, DC. Along with all in attendance, I could sense very quickly the humility, compassion, and wisdom of a man known around the world as “Pope Francis.”

What began as a step into history, however, quickly developed into a rich experience of spirituality through the charisms that this man quickly exhibited and freely shared with all who encountered him.

I will forever be grateful for the honor and privilege of representing Elyria Catholic High School and Catholic education as a whole through my personal journey to be part of Pope Francis’ visit to Washington, DC.

Mr. K and Alex Meihls ’09 meet on the front lawn of the White House. Alex now works for the House Oversight Committee.
A Message to
Alumni and Friends of Elyria Catholic High School

The Elyria Catholic community encompasses a diverse group of alumni, parents, students, and friends. But in diversity is found common ground: a passion for Catholic education and the desire to help move the mission of the school forward. Our success would not be possible without the hard work and generosity of our families, donors, and the support of the Diocese of Cleveland. Truly, this community is a team, working on a foundation of faith, love, and mutual support. My hope is for this continued spirit of community building and faith sharing to reach each and every past and present student, and that the Holy Spirit guide all of us to continue to stay connected, celebrate our faith together, and work as a team to build a bright future for Elyria Catholic.

One initiative we are focused on this year is to improve school governance through the development of an Advisory Council. We have partnered with Business Volunteers Unlimited (BVU), The Center for Nonprofit Excellence to facilitate the process of identifying and engaging alumni and friends to join the Advisory Council. With the guidance of BVU, we have selected council members based on the skills, knowledge and resources needed by our school to be more effective in meeting our 21st century educational needs.

I would like to offer gratitude to all those who were able to attend the President’s Circle Reception held in October at the Lorain County Historical Center. It was a joy to spend an evening with alumni, friends and parents who have demonstrated their dedication, kindness and generosity to the Elyria Catholic community. As friends gathered for an evening of music, conversation and good food, I took the opportunity to introduce members of the Advisory Council in attendance. Leading the charge and direction of the Advisory Council is Chairperson Dr. Nicholas Ksenich. In his remarks to the group, Dr. Ksenich stated, “With the assistance and prayers of each of you, the Elyria Catholic Advisory Council is committed to partnering with Mrs. Butler and all supporters of Elyria Catholic to continue the efforts of prior administrators and benefactors to deliver Panther Pride for generations to come.”

Gratitude, appreciation and thanks. Those are the values that fill my heart and everyone’s heart who support Elyria Catholic and our students. Thank you to all those who support the Elyria Catholic Fund. As we kick off our 2015-2016 drive, please remember that each gift to Elyria Catholic, regardless of size, is a powerful testament to the impact the school has on us all. We are proud to announce that we have secured a $10,000 matching challenge grant from Steven Komives ’65. In Steve’s words, “I am proud to be part of an institution founded in faith – Elyria Catholic is, first and foremost, a Catholic high school. I’m so thankful ECHS existed for me. I challenge the Elyria Catholic community to be as generous as possible.”

Thank you for the grace that inspires you to be generous in support of our school. In the weeks leading up to Thanksgiving I am aware of giving thanks to God for the blessings that I have. It is gratitude that lies at the heart of Christian stewardship. I am thankful for your continued support of the mission of Elyria Catholic High School. It’s because of you, our donors, that we are able to make Catholic education a priority in Lorain County.

After 39 years of inspiring and motivating students through literature, creative writing, and the finer points of journalism, one of EC’s veteran teachers, Mrs. Kathy Knox, is hanging up her hat.

Why not make it an even 40 years? “I like 39,” says Knox with a laugh, “Haven’t you heard that women stop [aging] at 39?”

Indeed, Knox has witnessed a kind of metamorphosis in education over the years, but notes that the value of the literature she has taught and what students have been able to glean from that has, and will always, remain a constant. Likewise, Knox remarks that her students remain a source of inspiration to her. “I’m constantly amazed that after 39 years they can still teach me something, and that they are able to see something new in the literature that I’ve read and taught so many times. It’s interesting to see classic literature through their eyes.” They, she says, have always found a way of teaching her, too. She also notes that her longtime friend and colleague, Mrs. Pat Bradasca-Schock, also inspired her from the very beginning of her career. “[She] was a tremendous person... I was very serious and Pat Schock could bring fun to everything. She helped me see the possibilities in teaching.” The two taught together from 1978 to 2014.

A lover of literature and the arts from a young age, Knox credits a favorite high school English teacher at the now-closed St. Peter’s High School in Cleveland for planting the teaching seed. Knox recalls that her teacher — a nun — saw great potential in her creative abilities and insightful writing, and encouraged her to continue her studies beyond high school. “She encouraged my creative writing.

She loved literature and recognized an understanding [that I had for the literature] and affirmed that in my assignments.” She notes, too, that teaching appeals to her creative side and is “never boring.” She has always enjoyed it and feels privileged and proud to be a part of such a formative period in so many students’ lives.

Knox isn’t shying away from her creative side in retirement, either. She’s already written six novels and even published an Amazon Kindle edition of one: Blood Will Have Blood, “a parody of Shakespeare’s Hamlet with vampires.” She is working on her seventh novel now. Along with writing, Knox says she is looking forward to traveling with her husband and spending time with her grandchildren.

After countless plays, papers, and rehearsals, English and Theater teacher Mrs. Nan Mahony decided it was time to close the curtain on her full-time teaching career and move into a new phase of life: retirement.

Mahony began her teaching career at Cloverleaf High School in Lodi, Ohio where she taught Speech, English, and served as the assistant play director. She continued teaching at Lorain Catholic High School, where she taught Speech, Honors, College Option, AP English, and Theatre for 12 years until the school closed in 2004. She completed her teaching career at Elyria Catholic, where she served for 11 years as an English teacher, theatre teacher, and served as the school play and musical director. Of the many opportunities in the arts that she brought to her students, the Great Lakes Theatre Festival Artist in Residence program is one that Mahony speaks about with great pride and enthusiasm.

“The Artist in Residence program began more than 20 years ago as the brainchild of the Great Lakes Theatre Festival and its director Kenn McGlaughlin. GLTF was known in those days as the Shakespeare Festival. The idea was simple and pure genius — get professional actors into high schools to “teach” Shakespeare to students in a way they would enjoy and remember. Not only will students learn the beauty, majesty, and timelessness of Shakespeare, but new audiences would be nurtured and encouraged. Kenn approached my predecessor at Lorain Catholic HS to work out a deal where all the professional actors would spend a week “teaching” Shakespeare to all grade levels as a “dress rehearsal” before going out as teams of two to paying schools. When I came to Lorain Catholic two years later, I inherited the program and a deep friendship with Kenn and his successors at Great Lakes.”

When Lorain Catholic closed and Mahony began teaching at Elyria Catholic, she asked Principal Andy Krakowiak if he would be interested in continuing this program. He jumped at the chance and so did Great Lakes Theatre Festival. Each year they bring four to six teams of actors to Elyria Catholic for a week to teach the classics: Romeo and Juliet, Julius Caesar, Macbeth, and Hamlet.

“I am so happy that the program will continue. Elyria Catholic students deserve to be nurtured in the Arts in every way possible.”

Leaving behind this legacy of the arts at Elyria Catholic, Mahony is now teaching online coursework for Marygrove College’s Master’s in Education program, and enjoying her retirement while spending time with her grandchildren, reading, writing, traveling, and going to the theatre.
WELCOME NEW TEACHERS

ADMISSIONS CORNER

Do you remember your first day at Elyria Catholic High School as a freshman? The Class of 2019 entered the auditorium on the 25th of August with cheers from the entire student body, faculty and staff. The cheers didn’t stop there. The school welcomed the freshman class with cheers as they walked into the school’s opening mass as well—a tradition that Elyria Catholic holds dear. It is our hope that the freshmen will soon realize that the family they have joined here at EC will continue to cheer for them as they make their journey through high school.

As the Admissions Office begins the process of welcoming the class of 2020, I am looking forward to meeting prospective students and their families in the upcoming months. There are several opportunities for families to visit EC, including our Open House on Sunday, November 1, 2015 from 11:30 a.m.-2:00 p.m. Families will receive a tour of the campus by our own student ambassadors, who enjoy sharing their own personal experiences with prospective students. This is also a chance to meet faculty and staff, and visit classrooms.

The first Placement Exam will be given Saturday November 7, 2015 from 8:30 a.m.-noon. We recommend that families attend the Parent Meeting at 11:00 a.m. that same day as we will be sharing important information on the admissions process. The second Placement Exam will take place January 15, 2016. You can register for either date by visiting the Admissions tab on the homepage of our website.

In addition to Open House and the Placement Exams, prospective families are invited to attend our theatre department’s production of “Our Town” on November 5, 7, & 8, 2015. Our theatre students will take the stage again for the spring musical on March 16, 18, and 19, 2016. The annual All-County Mass will be taking place on January 25, 2016. Every year Elyria Catholic invites all junior high students from surrounding Lorain County Catholic schools to attend this Eucharistic celebration. I highly recommend attending this mass if you have never attended it. It truly embodies the spirit and sense of togetherness that is Elyria Catholic.

As you can see, there really is something for everyone at Elyria Catholic. As I have told prospective students, the only way to discover which school is best for them is to visit. If your son or daughter is interested in a shadow day, please contact me by phone at 440-365-1821 ext. 116 or by email at annie.cunningham@elyriacatholic.com. By shadowing another student, your son or daughter has the chance to interact with the faculty and student body, and get an all-around feel for the school. I guarantee once they are here, they will hear the cheers wherever they go.

Night of Celebration Gala & Auction
Honoring Nick Abraham ’60, Jim Herrick ’70, and Jack Matia ’75

On Saturday, April 25, 2015, attendees of the Night of Celebration Gala & Auction honored three alumni who demonstrated an exceptional commitment to making Elyria Catholic the outstanding community that it is. The evening was an expression of a Catholic community of faith, coming together to celebrate the actions of those who have — in a variety of ways — done their part to promote the mission of Catholic education at Elyria Catholic.

For more than 20 years, alumni Nick Abraham (Abraham Ford), Jim Herrick (Liberty Ford), and Jack Matia (Jack Matia Honda) have donated a new car for the annual student car raffle. This year’s car raffle raised over $80,000 in student scholarships for the 2015-2016 academic year.

All three men credit their Catholic education and faith in God in forming their character. They feel that God has blessed them abundantly and so they thank Him by giving back. “It is important to pay it forward by being a mentor, providing service to others and giving of your time, talent and treasure,” remarked Nick Abraham.

Philanthropic support is the backbone of every Catholic high school. Nick, Jim, and Jack embody a philanthropic spirit that involves giving their time, help and care to causes they support to make their community a better place to live and raise families. Elyria Catholic is blessed to have Nick, Jim and Jack as alumni and past parents who continue to graciously support the Elyria Catholic school community.

The resounding success of the event is attributed to our donors’ deep commitment to Catholic education, and their philanthropic support of our mission,” remarked President/Principal Amy Butler ’80. Veteran auctioneer Bob Frantz ’86 led the guests in a new paddle raise initiative: Sponsor a Scholar. This alone raised nearly $50,000 in support of tuition assistance. The evening was also an occasion to honor three Elyria Catholic alumni who for more than 20 years have donated a new car for the raffle to raise money for the school. Students thanked car dealership owners Nick Abraham ’60, Jim Herrick ’70 and Jack Matia ’75 with hand designed thank you cards and framed artwork of the Panther stadium.

“We have a deep loyalty (to Elyria Catholic),” stated Jim Herrick. Also new this year, was the opportunity to win a 3-night stay and airfare to Samuel Adams Brewery Tour in Boston. Guests enjoyed dinner catered by Brennan’s Catering and dessert provided by ACDC Cupcakes. The evening continued with dancing to Outta Dodge. The funds raised by the Gala make it possible for Elyria Catholic to continue to offer a quality, comprehensive education for our young men and women.

Deacon Pat, or “Deac,” as he is affectionately known, is the current head of the Theology department and an educator at EC. Responsible for teaching about the importance of serving those who need help the most, Deacon Pat has strived to ensure that his senior pupils understand the value of how communal service can be a blessing for all parties involved. Describing the call to serve as “The Need,” Deacon Pat emphasizes to his students about the importance of becoming engrossed in the church or in the community in a number of ways once they graduate from high school. “Like the Nike mantra... ‘Just do it.’ Get connected to a parish. Find families your age who also share the faith and then look for your opportunity to get involved!” shares Deacon Pat. This lesson has been his goal and successful mainstay since his Elyria Catholic tenure began 15 years ago.

Grounded in his faith, and speaking with a gentle, humorous invocation, Deacon Pat provides guidance in several areas to both students and adults. He officiates the daily morning communion prayer services at the school, coordinates the Peer Ministry program — an organization of students to assist with peers with spiritual guidance — preaches at least once a month at St. Jude Parish in Elyria, helps to prepare couples for marriage via counseling and the Pre Cana program, performs baptisms, and coordinates Confirmation formation programs around the diocese. And these are just a small handful of the service activities in which he continually engages.

In addition to his many acts of vocational service to the school and to his parish, Deacon Pat also holds the roles of husband and father. Having taken a somewhat unorthodox route to the Diaconate, Deacon Pat was already married and had started his family when he responded to the call to serve the church. He admits that he was constantly told by many that he should become a man of the cloth. But, it was the advice of one man, the late Bishop William Cosgrove, which finally drove him to strongly consider the idea. His family’s response was one of enthusiasm and unconditional support, which he admits was, from the very beginning, 100%. Having been married now for 40 years, Deacon Pat comments that he has gained a depth of understanding on how to balance his life as a minister, a husband, and father. Indicating that it requires constant communication with his wife, his pastor, and the school administration, he believes that he has developed a sense of awareness and insight throughout his familial life, which he uses to teach through real world experiences. He encourages both students and adults to seek out the opportunities to serve wherever possible and do what you can to make and be the difference. “Spirituality is much, much more than ‘My personal Relationship with God.’ That is only part of the journey.”

If there is not an adage about how behind every faith-filled, enthusiastic deacon, there is a strong-willed, caring woman, there should be. Mrs. Donna Humphrey, wife to Deacon Pat Humphrey for 40 years, has thrived as a businesswoman and mother while establishing her own faith-based service to those who are in need. Coming from a family full of giving, Donna credits them as the major influence on her life to be a servant to others. It was this love of giving back and paying it forward that led her to become increasingly involved at her parish, St. Jude Church. Indicating that she has always had an interest in music, Donna reveals the enjoyment she feels when worshipping. “I have always had an interest in music and have found it very fulfilling to be able to use the gifts God has given me to help others worship Him.” Donna indicates that she has been blessed to work with many fine, talented people during her years as the contemporary choir director.
Although she knows her limits and takes things as they come, Donna finds it difficult to deny people her time. However, she admits that she loves everything she does in service to others. In addition to directing the contemporary choir at St. Jude Church, Donna has also served on the finance committee, the liturgy committee, assisted with the children’s choir, and helped with the Pre Cana program for engaged couples. However, her most significant service work stems from the foundation known as Blessing House. Formed, quite literally, in St. Jude’s own backyard, Blessing House is the brainchild of Donna and Sister Mary Berigan, a former principal of St. Jude School in Elyria. The organization was born out of the idea of providing children with a safe environment to stay during periods of turmoil in their families. Having had previous experience advocating for child safety, Donna and Sr. Berigan used their knowledge to assemble Blessing House in 2005. Donna’s primary role at Blessing House has been as the business manager ever since its conception. “We developed Blessing House as a children’s crisis care center that cares for children up to 12 years old when their parents are having an emergency and need a safe place for them to stay.

More recently, the youngest son of Deacon Pat and Donna and EC alum, Brian ’98, is currently on the path to the priesthood. For the last two years, Brian has been studying at seminary in Los Angeles. However, not unlike his father, Brian’s journey to Holy Orders was somewhat unorthodox. After graduating from EC, Brian obtained a degree in music engineering and moved to California to pursue a career in the music industry. “I moved to Los Angeles and began working at a well-known studio as a “runner,” making coffee and picking up food for recording artists […] I worked my way up the ladder… Runner, 2nd Engineer, Engineer, Producer.” During this time, Brian had the enviable fortune of working with artists such as The Eagles, Bruce Springsteen, Jay-Z, Diana Ross, and Bruno Mars. Yet, despite his success, he always felt the need to please everyone, which he admits caused anxiety. Eventually, he came to the realization that music was a way to build relationships with people, not just a means to an end. Brian began to shift his attention from the music industry to a life of ministry and service.

Brian indicates that he learned that the process was just as important as the product. Instead of having to perform service for others, he began to understand that the experience of prayer and the act of serving more often affected his affinity for building meaningful relationships. As his focus shifted from music to ministry, Brian voluntered at a nursing home, which he credits as the catalyst that allowed him to make the leap into other service projects. “The best part about visiting the nursing home is when we would sit there and just be. We had nowhere to go and nothing to accomplish. Just them and me and God. Chillin’. ” Later on, he would get involved at a local parish with people closer to his own age and participate in retreats, music ministry, prayer groups, and functions to assist the homeless and destitute. He admits that the choice to respond to the call to serve can be difficult with all the distractions in life, but implores people to try. He encourages those who may be considering a life of religious devotion and those perhaps seeking happiness outside of themselves to slow down and focus on how they can be instrumental in serving others.

Taking the path to the priesthood is not an easy undertaking, even for those who begin the journey at a far younger age than Brian. In his case, though, Brian has the added challenge of leaving his secular life and career. Though he knows that the changes will be gradual and ever constant, his family has provided a powerful boost through their unconditional support. Over the last few years, Deacon Pat has kept in constant contact with his son as he continues the necessary training. He feels elated that someone so close to him has responded to the call to serve. “[…] I have never seen him happier. He is at peace. I am proud of him.” Understanding that it takes an enormous amount of courage to enter the priesthood, Deacon Pat commends his son on accepting the call and opportunity to serve. So too does Donna. She explains that while he constantly tried to live in the moment, there was a constant desire within him. “There was also a deep spiritual part of him that came out in his caring and sensitive nature, his desire to find truth through his questions and his conscious awareness of a world much bigger than himself.” For Brian, the call to the priesthood may not have been typical, but with the support of his family and his renewed faith, he knows that he can readily respond.

Familial legacy can have profound effects on future generations. The Humphrey family continues to build its legacy through its numerous contributions for the good of mankind. Through faith, experience, and patience, they have demonstrated how the innate good in people can be found and spread to others. Their efforts exemplify the best side of humanity.

Actions Inspire a Living Faith

Dr. Michael Hoffman ’79 visits Concepcion with bus driver Armando Cordoba.

Each January, Dr. Michael Hoffman and wife Ginny travel to Honduras with a medical brigade based out of Holy Family Parish in Stow, Ohio. Michael describes his experience: “It’s a wonderful way to start the year by giving some of our ‘time, talent and treasure’ to those that truly are in need of care. We recently returned from our sixth trip to the El Paraiso area. We have made many friends that we keep in contact with throughout the year and especially enjoy spending time with while we are there. Armando Cordoba has been one of our bus drivers the past few years and is a friend of ours. On one of our last days we were at a poor area near Danli called Concepcion. I was surprised to see the shirt that Armando was wearing that day. It was nice to see a little bit of home 3,000 miles away in Honduras. It was also refreshing to know that the students of Elyria Catholic participate in this worthwhile ministry and made me very proud to be a Panther!”

Living Stations of the Cross

The “Living Stations of the Cross” began in the 1998 Lenten season. Eleven area high school students memorized lines and stage direction and presented the live enactment of the Stations of the Cross to parishioners at St. Jude in Elyria. It was so well-received that after just a couple of years, other area parishes began to request the presentation for their own parishioners.

“The Living Stations gives a unique perspective and interpretation of the events portrayed in the Stations of the Cross. Each time I have seen it, I have been profoundly moved. I highly recommend it.”

– Father Al Krupp

Since that time, the group has grown to include 19 students, including a narrator and musicians. In 2008, when Dean Robinson, director of “Living Stations” and campus and youth minister, joined the staff at Elyria Catholic, the cast became solely EC students. Since that time, The Living Stations has become a rich tradition. The group has traveled annually during the Lenten season all over the Diocese of Cleveland and performs at dozens of parishes and schools. The presentation has also been featured in the Catholic Universe Bulletin in 2008 and 2015.

“Our small group in the balcony was in tears as we watched these teenagers deliver such a powerful message. I don’t know if they understand how much they touched everyone who saw them perform.”

– Parishioner/St. Jude

To date, the production has been seen live by thousands of people, while countless others have watched it on DVD. The group has sold over 2,000 DVD copies and has raised over $50,000 in donations and DVD sales. The funds have been used for scholarships, spiritual opportunities and presentations at Elyria Catholic, as well as additions to the EC Religion Department and the EC campus.
After graduating from EC in '98, where did you attend college and what did you major in?

I attended Ashland University and majored in Philosophy. I found that a liberal arts education taught creativity, problem solving and laid a foundation of critical thinking that has benefited me in a wide range of professional pursuits. I could probably cite Mrs. Knox’s senior English class as the most important influence on my choosing to major in Philosophy.

What inspired you and your friend Dan to create DANSOAP?

Lake Erie is such a beautiful part of [the] natural world. I have so many memories sailing on it in summers with Dan, and now my kids love splashing in the waves and we all drink that water and eat the fish from it. It is painful to look at the beauty of Lake Erie while knowing that it is a heavily polluted body of water. DANSOAP is a small contribution to clean water. We wanted to create a product that works well, is affordable, and is safe for the environment once it reaches our waterways.

What drew you back to the Cleveland area?

My wife and I lived on the coast of North Carolina for a few years and were drawn home to the tall hardwood trees as well as the honesty and warmth of the people from our region. This still is one of the friendliest places I’ve ever been.

In what way did your high school experience shape or affect your professional and entrepreneurial pursuits?

Elyria Catholic provided a stable and consistent foundation for my teenage years. It is easier to dream and take risks when you feel like your footing is solid.

Your website mentions a commitment to responsible business. What, in your opinion, does that encompass?

Every action we take has a consequence. A responsible business acknowledges this and in the least seeks to do no harm. At best, a responsible business contributes to betterment of our communities and environment.

As we grow I’d like to see DANSOAP utilize zero waste buildings that improve the aesthetics of a neighborhood, pay wages and benefits that can support a family, and sell high quality products at a reasonable price.

Visit DANSOAP on the web at www.dansoap.com for a complete list of where to purchase.
The students of Elyria Catholic have been volunteering during their spring break for the past four years, helping those in need while enriching their own lives, too. In 2014, 18 students immersed themselves in a mission trip to Central America; this past spring the students stayed stateside. Seventy four students rode a charter bus for 18 hours to arrive in Columbia, Mississippi with the task of helping the community residents clean up the debris caused by a deadly tornado that ripped through their town in December 2014. The EF-3 tornado knocked down trees and power lines and destroyed businesses. The students spent their days chopping down trees that had been pulled down by the tornado and cleaning up debris. Many students had never heard of Columbia before they arrived, but the trip had a big impact on them. “I was a little nervous coming here because I didn’t know what to expect,” said Ryan Turner, a 17-year-old junior. “I don’t think the experience changes lives until you are here. I feel so much more committed to God because of this.” Associate Principal Mike Wisnor works with the National Recovery Network to set up the trips. Wisnor said the students want to help, adding, “They want to do good because they have a natural sense of philanthropy and a natural sense of goodness. We do the work as part of the Gospel. Hopefully, we can inspire others to see that there are so many more needs.”

PARTNERS IN ELYRIA CATHOLIC’S MISSION TO SERVE OTHERS

First Catholic Slovak Ladies Association (FCSLA) is a fraternal benefit society that ranks among the top fraternal societies in the United States. Founded in 1892 in Cleveland, Ohio FCSLA has identified two of its primary concerns of support: caring for others and involving young people.

Tapping into both mentioned focus areas, Elyria Catholic was encouraged to seek funding from the organization for the school’s new service program: “Alternative Spring Break.” This new experiential, service learning program spoke to the mission and vision of FCSLA of promoting the temporal and spiritual welfare of people through charitable activities. Through a generous gift of $10,000 from FCSLA the Alternative Spring Break program became a reality.

The $10,000 gift helped students, who gave up their traditional spring break, to participate in meaningful service projects throughout the country. Some of the past projects include: relief work in Henryville, Indiana; clean-up efforts in New Jersey from the damage done by Hurricane Sandy; and most recently, students working in Columbia, Mississippi to help a town and its people recover from a tornado.

Elyria Catholic High School and its students are grateful for the support it has received from First Catholic Slovak Ladies Association. These immersive service experiences help build a community of caring and justice among our students which reaches out and responds to the needs of others. It guides students to develop leadership skills and Christian citizenship that is lived out through the message of Jesus Christ.

Career Day

On Friday, March 13, 2015, EC hosted a variety of professionals, community members, and alumni for its largest Career Day to date. St. John Medical Center of Westlake, who co-sponsored the event, brought 20 individuals from various professions, including physicians, human resources, information technology, finance and accounting, medical technology, social work, and occupational and physical therapy. Elyria’s Ridge Tool Company also provided several of their employees to share their experiences. In addition, a few alumni came back to participate and present to the students, including Ted Mahl ’74 (architect), Joe Bott ’04 (lawyer), and Ryan Gorney ’99 (information technology). Other fields represented included veterinary medicine, law, education, fashion, and engineering. Each presenter offered inside advice and background information on his or her profession.

The goal of the day was for the students to receive comprehensive information on their top three career choices. The event was the brainchild of Amy Butler and St. John Medical Center CEO Bill Young, and executed by EC guidance counselor Ms. Chelsea Burkle. Burkle surveyed the student body in December 2014 to determine and organize the pool of presenters. Then, she put together each individual student’s schedule for the day. Burkle shares that the event was hugely successful in part because of the large number of professional presenters, but also because the students had the opportunity to hear about the careers that most interested them. The students were also provided with a t-shirt, courtesy of St. John Medical Center.

MARCH FOR LIFE

Sixteen students braved the winter weather to join the “Right to Life March” in Washington, D.C. on January 22, 2015. The trip was organized by Associate Principal, Mike Wisnor and Campus Minister, Dean Robinson. Traveling with the students was the Avon chapter of the Knights of Columbus, who generously provided transportation for the students and staff. The students, seen at right, also took time out to attend mass at the National Basilica.
Tim Ertle admits he is a sports addict. He also admits that his job as Elyria Catholic’s new Athletic Director is not the usual 9-to-5 gig, but that is part of what attracted him to the position in the first place. He loves that there is something new and exciting happening every day and he never knows where the day will take him.

Ertle also pointed out that he has been very impressed by the support from the EC community and all of the people who have offered to help in any way they can. Ertle did his homework and studied EC’s rich tradition and said he knows the bar is set high.

“I think athletics is probably the most visible thing we do as a school and it’s a great way to show the community what we teach during the school day. I have enjoyed working with our coaches and student-athletes and look forward to developing well-rounded young people who are better because of their days as a Panther.”

Prior to joining Elyria Catholic, Ertle worked as the sports information director at Ursuline College — an NCAA Division II school on Cleveland’s east side — where he wore many hats ranging from managing the school’s website to leading game day operations.

Ertle, the eldest of six children, grew up a diehard Cleveland sports fan, though he notes that his favorite team is the Browns. (He has attended all but a handful of home games since their return in 1999.) After graduating from St. Ignatius High School in 2007, Ertle earned his degree from John Carroll University. He still lives in the Cleveland area and is currently finishing up his MBA at Ursuline College.
Girls Soccer Program Celebrates 20th Season

Another Lady Panther soccer season has begun. The Lady Panthers team ended their fall 2014 season with a record of 16-2-4, just one game short of playing for the state title. The 2014 season also marked the program’s 20th anniversary. After the team’s successes last year, and many recent successful seasons, it may be easy to forget that the powerhouse program came from humble beginnings.

Kathleen Marsh Granlund ’94 started playing soccer at age 5. “Dad coached [girls] all those years in the city league. I got to high school... [and] it bothered me a ton that I would have had to play on the boys’ team...[but] after numerous encouraging talks from mom, she convinced me to give it a try,” she said. It should be noted that her mother, Patricia Marsh, known to many as “Mama Marsh,” was a supportive presence on the sidelines for many players, for many years.

Jennifer Marsh ’97, Kathleen’s sister, also joined the boys’ team her freshman year. “My dad never missed a game, and I never played,” she said. Three other girls joined the boys’ squad that year. “My dad...recognized the talent in my female teammates that was going unnoticed and underutilized on the bench. He made the decision at the end of that year to do something about it.”

Their father, Coach Andrew Marsh, founded the team in 1994. He volunteered and served as both coach and trainer. The squad practiced wherever he could find field space, played games at odd hours (because the team did not have permission to use field lights), and recruited parents to drive the vanpool. The players wore the leftover, oversized jerseys from the boys’ team, with numbers in the 40s and 50s. Most of the team’s equipment came from the Marsh family’s garage.

“I’ve always told the athletes you only fail when you quit trying,” Coach Marsh said. “We took our hand-me-down uniforms, got a schedule and began.”

That first year, the team consisted of the four girls from the boys’ team, close friends of those players (including a number of people who had never played soccer before), and several girls who had been cut from the volleyball team. “We were unknown in the women’s soccer community, so our first year was a hodgepodge of games against JV teams, practice squads, and other teams trying to make it in the sport,” Jennifer said.

The team ended up going 10-3-1. “We did very well,” Coach Marsh said. “More importantly everyone wanted to come back and do it again.”

Coach Marsh led the team for 13 seasons, finishing with an overall record of 127-81-26. Under his leadership, four players became All Ohioans and one, Mary Ellen Turk ’02, was named to the 2001 NSCAA Scholar All America Team. Another, Erika Kleinholtz ’00, was the first soccer player to be inducted into the Elyria Sports Hall of Fame. Many players have gone on to play in college.

“There [were] always growing pains, as family you work through them.” Coach Marsh said. “[We were] a small school thrown into a very difficult conference. With determination and desire, EC grew, won North Coast League Conference in 1997 and got [our] first of three District Runner-ups in 1999.”

Coach Marsh’s commitment to the program, and to all of the players who passed through EC under his leadership, can be seen and felt in the successes of the program today. “I believe the closer you get to the state finals the more talent wants to play for the school,” Coach Marsh said. “EC went to D3, more talent enrolled and is now getting closer to our goal of becoming state champions.”

It has also had another very real and lasting impact. “My dad, very quietly, inspired an entire generation of women and taught us that we could, in fact, do anything. He taught us that it didn’t matter what other people thought or said about us as long as we went out there and did the very best that we could,” Jennifer said.

Coach Marsh said he has many fond memories, almost too many to name them all. “It’s not necessarily the winning that’s memorable but the process in getting there,” he said. “[And] of course, the love of the game.”

Anne Wilson Yu ’00 resides in Sharon, Massachusetts, with her husband and two children. She played soccer for four years at EC, then club soccer at Kent State University, and met her husband while playing soccer in Boston. She works for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and Wellesley College.

Betty Blair wrote: “Upon Jim Kolopus’ untimely death at the age of 33 in 1971, his 1956 classmates formed the Kolopus Scholarship Fund, which is EC’S OLDEST EXISTING scholarship. Our Student Council President, Jim Kolopus, was indeed a very talented individual. Dr. Kolopus was a nuclear physicist and principal investigator of materials brought back from the Apollo moon missions. He was a widely recognized solid-state scientist and author of some 33 publications. He left behind his widow, fellow classmate, Joanne Stefek, and three small children. In the 44 years since his death, we have awarded some 56 scholarships exceeding $40,000. In commemorating our class’s 50th anniversary in 2006, we made arrangements with the school’s Endowment Foundation to have the Kolopus Scholarship Fund become a part of the Endowment. We are looking forward to our 60th anniversary in 2016.”

Walter came to Case Western Reserve University in 2007 after spending nearly three decades at the Yale University School of Medicine. He traces his interest in physiology to the day an Elyria Catholic teacher gave him a Scientific American article about the synapse by Nobel Prize-winner John Eccles. Boron’s own research has focused on acid-base homeostasis, in particular the regulation of intracellular pH. His projects also explore the molecular mechanism of gas channels. Boron is a past president of the American Physiological Society, the founding editor-in-chief of the journal Physiology and the co-editor of the medical student textbook Medical Physiology: A Cellular and Molecular Approach.

Jake Hromada completed his first year at Ohio University as the play-by-play broadcaster for Ohio volleyball, women’s basketball, and baseball teams. Hromada also worked in the Media Relations Department, and worked as the assistant Sports Information Director for the volleyball team. Jake was a part of a historic volleyball season, getting to experience the Bobcats go 16-0 in Mid-American Conference play for the first time in eight years. He was also asked to broadcast the Mid-American Conference volleyball tournament in Athens, in which he called eight games in three days. Hromada then moved to women’s basketball in the winter. After winning only nine games in 2013-14, Ohio finished the 2014-15 campaign at 27-5 overall, won the MAC regular season title for the first time in 20 years, won the MAC Tournament at Quicken Loans Arena for the first time in 30 years, and got a bid to the NCAA Tournament to face Arizona State in Tempe, Arizona.

Hromada received two national awards after his first year at Ohio, the first coming from the American Volleyball Coaches Association in which he was named a finalist in the broadcast category for the Grant Burger Media Award.

“As someone who has been a college head coach for almost twenty years, I can safely say I have never been around someone that had this level of intuition when it comes to broadcasting,” said Ohio volleyball coach Deane Webb, who nominated Jake for the award last May.

The second national honor came from the Sportscaster’s Talent Agency of America, in which Hromada was one of three freshman given an Honorable Mention for the annual Jim Nantz Award and All-America Program, which recognizes the most outstanding collegiate radio and TV sportscasters nationwide.

“I was super lucky to have been involved with Ohio athletics so soon this past year,” Hromada said. “There is absolutely no way I am the broadcaster I am today if not for the opportunities I had at Elyria Catholic. The support from the community and staff helped get me off to a tremendous start to my career.”

Hromada currently finished his second year as the Voice of the Lorain County Ironmen, a summer collegiate wood bat team in the Great Lakes Summer Collegiate League, and is gearing up for his second year as the broadcaster and SID for Ohio volleyball, and the broadcaster for women’s basketball and baseball teams.
